How long have you been doing music?

Since I was about 15 or 16. I did my first recording at 16 with DJ Jorun.

What are your influences?

Dr. Dre, of course. And The Beatles for a little bit of diversity.

What do you consider your style?

Hip Hop I guess. There's no real way to classify it. (Laughing) I guess that makes me a hypocrite. When I was growing up there was no real Hip Hop scene. All you heard on the radio was Motley Crue and Kiss. I had a Naughty by Nature tape, which I still have.

Who's the biggest name you've ever worked with?

Busta Rhymes or Ludacris. But the most memorable for me was Black Moon. I'm a huge fan.

Do you remember the first Hip Hop song you heard?

I do, I was at Green Valley Camp Ground and the song was Tricky by DMC. I felt like a rebel 'cause there was swearing, so I couldn't let my parents hear it.

What's the most difficult thing about being a musician?

For some reason, every year I miss my girlfriend's birthday, I'm always on tour. But she supports me and really respects what I do.

What's the next goal for you?

I'd like the stability of a major label deal or a publishing agreement. I'd like to do more producing.
